'Messages from beyond show' set to test the psychic cynics

An established medium and animal communicator, who was once called the 'pint-sized thunder from down under' by The New York Times, Amanda De Warren is coming to Brisbane for two shows on 19 August.

Amanda De Warren is one of Australia's best known mediums or afterlife channellers and animal communicators. A person with the psychic ability to connect people to their loved ones who have passed away and to communicator to animals alive, missing and passed away.

Amanda said she has met her fair share of sceptics and cynics when it comes to her ability to speak to people who have passed over.

"There are good and bad mediums, I have been put to the test plenty of times and have seen the absolute highs of human emotion when a connection is made.

"I am blessed to share my gift to help and change people's lives, there is a sense of closure when someone connects to a family member," Ms De Warren said.

One example is when invited to appear on the *Today Tonight Show, prior to the show, Amanda was tested when asked to speak to a television crew member.

"I spoke to a woman and stressed I did not want any personal information as am very strict about this. Almost immediately I was connected to a man had sadly passed over very quickly by his own hands. He identified himself as the woman's husband.

"There was some private information shared, that only the woman herself would have known, connections are in-depth and emotional but provide some reassurance, as it did in this instance.

"If there is a message to be shared with you personally from someone who has passed over, you will know," she said.

The Messages from Beyond Shows are being held on Friday 19 August at 2.00pm and 7.30pm at the Comfort Inn and Suites, Robertson Gardens, 281 Kessels Road, Nathan, Brisbane.
